Ukrainian Institute for Plant Variety Examination

I International Applied Science conference "The Newest Agrotechnologies"

4-6 June 2020

Kyiv, Ukraine

Conference partners:

National University of Life and Environmental sciences of Ukraine (Ukraine)

The Institute of Bioenergy Crops and Sugar Beet NAAS (Ukraine)

Bila Tserkva National Agrarian University (Ukraine)

Institute of Plant Physiology and Genetics NAS (Ukraine)

Ltd Research Institute of Agrarian Business (Ukraine)

University of East Sarajevo (Bosnia and Herzegovina)

Scientific advances have made it possible to create interdisciplinary areas for solving theoretical and applied problems in the agro-industry sector by eliminating the boundaries between the various fields of scientific activity. Preservation of biological diversity in the context of the rapid development of plant breeding, climate change and the aim to produce high-quality and safe food products require a comprehensive study of modern areas of agricultural science: from molecules to mathematical models and economic indicators.

Especially relevant is the evaluation of new varieties in the process of testing, because at this stage, not only their quality and biodiversity are determined, but also the optimization of standard costs, the development of automated schemes and methods.

The purpose of I International Applied Science conference "The Newest Agrotechnologies" is the establishment and deepening of scientific connections, the exchange of experience and the dissemination of knowledge about the importance of the scientific approach in agriculture, and the search for solutions to applied and theoretical tasks in the agricultural sector and plant varieties testing.

Languages of the conference: English, Ukrainian, Russian

The conference sessions:

1. Plant biotechnology and physiology
2. Plant genetics and plant breeding
3. Plant production
4. Plant protection
5. Arable Farming
6. Agricultural economics
7. Information technology in agriculture
8. Bioinformatics and biosensorics
9. Bioenergetics
10. Plant varieties studying
